HISTORY OF THE LIBRARY.

In the month of December, 1844 (the Grand Lodge having been organized January the 8th, preceding), the Grand Master, Oliver Cock, addressed a letter to the Grand Secretary inviting him "to suggest such topics as he desired to be incorporated in his Annual Address for the Grand Lodge at its next [second] meeting in January [1845], &c." From the Grand Secretary's reply we make the following extract:—

"* * * My first suggestion is relative to the importance of founding a GRAND LODGE LIBRARY. When I became a Mason (in 1838), I immediately inquired for Masonic Books, in the hope of improving myself in Masonry; and was greatly disappointed in being able to find among a large circle of old influential members [in Cincinnati] only a copy of 'Cross's Chart,' and some five volumes of the 'Masonic Mirror' (Boston), 1826-31, all of which I devoured, and learned for the first time of that mysterious person 'Morgan.' Since we have organized a Grand Lodge, and it has pleased the brethren to call me to a post of usefulness and responsibility, I feel that want to a still greater extent, and I am sure that the young and inquiring brethren of this jurisdiction must experience the same difficulty. I have recently become possessed of a copy of that which I had long regarded as a fabulous work; viz: Dr. Anderson's Constitutions; also, of the first two volumes of the Freemasons' Magazine (Boston, 1842-43). These I will use as the nucleus of a Library, from which small beginning may yet spring a Library of larger dimensions and greater value, should the Grand Lodge concur in our suggestions and foster the undertaking.

"I therefore suggest, that, * * *

Grand Master Cock thus referred to the subject in his Address of January, 1845:—

"It has been suggested to me that, 'if a certain amount of the funds of the Grand Lodge should be set apart each year, for the purpose of securing Books for the Grand Lodge, a very respectable Masonic Library might thus be collected without the amount expended being felt by the Grand Lodge.' This seems to me a subject worthy of your consideration."

The Committee to whom the subject was referred reported as follows (which was adopted):—

"We feel the subject to be one of very great importance to the interests of Masonry, more so, perhaps, to us in the far west, where the means for obtaining masonic information are much more limited than in older settled countries. We also believe that the only true method for disseminating masonic light and knowledge, and of having the principles of our Order properly appreciated and practiced, is to create an interest in the study of the same as laid down in the Constitutions, and works of Masonry.

"Your Committee do not believe, however, that the state of the finances of this Grand Lodge (whose income is only $250.00 for two years) will admit of making an appropriation sufficient to procure an extensive collection of masonic information, still, we believe something should be done—a commencement should be made, and additions made from time to time as the Grand Lodge may be able, so that in time we may have a collection of masonic works that will be an honor to us. In furtherance of this object, we recommend the adoption of the following resolution; viz:—

"Resolved, That an appropriation of five dollars be made, to be expended under the direction of the Grand Secretary, for procuring such masonic works as he may see proper.

"Respectfully submitted by the Committee,

"B. S. OLDS,
"WM. ABBE,
"J. F. KINNEY."

We insert the names, that all may share in the rewards as well as the work, remarking that every committee, with a single exception, at every session of the Grand Lodge, has fully endorsed the subject and approved the plans of the Grand Secretary, who has had charge of their execution.

During many years, the appropriation was small, and being in the "far west," we did not have access to the marts when and where such books could be procured. Masonic books are not often to be found on sale at the bookstores, and rare and valuable works are picked up with avidity by collectors on the spot, so that the task of collecting has been one of great difficulty, independent of their great cost. During the past year we have known a brother to pay $50 for a copy of Franklin's edition of the Constitutions, 1730, and $100 for Pike's work of 1859 on the A. and A. Rite. Our first effort was to secure the Proceedings of our sister Grand Lodges and bind them; also, the Masonic Periodicals of that day. Owing to our "youth and inexperience," we did not go back of that year, as we should have done, and when we sought to it was too late; hence, this part of the Library is not as full and complete as we could desire. It is only within a few years past that the Grand Lodge has exchanged its Proceedings with the various Masonic Grand Bodies of the higher degrees. The Library having received from the Grand Secretary the collection of their Proceedings he had individually made, has kept up, by the system of exchange then adopted, that collection, including Proceedings of Grand Chapters, Councils, Commanderies, &c., which to-day is one of the most interesting and valuable portions of the Series, being especially full in Templar Proceedings beyond that of any similar body in the land.

It has been the constant endeavor of the Librarian to procure all the Proceedings, Periodicals, and Works bearing upon Masonic subjects (either by exchange or purchase) he could to the extent of the means at his disposal. And it is to be hoped that Grand Officers and Brethren receiving this Catalogue will supply, as far as possible, any deficiencies in this Series.

In the compilation of this Catalogue we have devoted much time and labor, and met with no little difficulty in arranging the General Works under Title V. properly, according to subjects. It will, however, compare favorably with such catalogues as we have, being those of California 1869, 1872, our own of 1849, '54, and '58, and of Missouri of 1872.

We published in 1849 a small Catalogue of four pages (at the end of the fifth year of the Grand Lodge); and again at the tenth year, 1854, and the fifteenth, 1858, of nine, and twenty-two pages. A decade and a half having passed, while the number of works and volumes have greatly increased, and the Grand Lodge being about to issue its fifth volume of Proceedings, 1869-73, at the close of its thirtieth year we have prepared the fourth Catalogue of the Grand Lodge Library to accompany it, as a suitable memorial of the progress made during these years to find the light in Masonry we had sought.

Of the Brothers whose names appear in this sketch, Past Grand Master Cock, Past Grand Treasurer Olds, and Past Master Abbe have passed away from their earthly labors. Past Junior Grand Warden (1846) John F. Kinney, after serving as Justice of the Supreme Court of Iowa, was appointed Judge of one of the territorial courts, and removed from our jurisdiction. These Brothers, as well as all their successors, as Grand Masters and committee-men, have ever given this subject their earnest support. Grand Master Waters, though last on the list, is equal to the first of its friends in his devotion to its interests.

* Lost. The proceedings of the several Grand Lodges of this year were delivered to the Committee on Foreign Correspondence, and by the committee left at the hotel in Dubuque for the Grand Secretary, but when he called for them the landlord denied any knowledge of them.

No proceedings from the seceding states for 1861-64 received. Those of these years received since are bound in second series.

In this series the proceedings of the several states are bound by themselves, perfect, from the discontinuance of the first series, in 1870, and going back as far as we could collect them. All of this series prior to 1871, and all that follows (except the reprints) of Title II., were donated to the library by T. S. Parvin, the binding only being paid for by the Grand Lodge. The Reprints were donate! by the Grand Lodges printing them, and are catalogued by themselves at the end of this series.

The following synopsis of the contents of this library is by Dr. A. G. Mackey, and conveys to the reader's mind the wealth of the whole:—

Volume I.

1. A Dictionary of Symbolical Masonry.—By Rev. George Oliver, D. D.

This work was first published by Spencer, of London, in 1853. While freely borrowing from Gadick's "Freimaurer Lexicon," and Mackey's "Lexicon of Freemasonry," the learned compiler has added from his pen, and from other sources, much valuable and interesting information. As a Dictionary of English Masonry, it will prove eminently serviceable to the Masonic student.

2. The Book of the Lodge.—By Rev. George Oliver, D. D.

First published at London, in 1849. It was intended to supply the English fraternity with a sort of manual or monitor, but has been composed on so philosophical a plan as to render it valuable to every Mason. Any one of the chapters of this interesting work would furnish an admirable lecture, to be read by a Master to his Lodge, or to be studied by the members.

Volume II.

3. The Symbol of Glory.—By Rev. George Oliver, D. D.

This work, written when the learned author was approaching his seventieth year—the critical three score and ten of Scripture—is a pregnant evidence that increasing years have not weakened the strength of his intellect, nor abated the warmth of his imagination. It consists of thirteen lectures, in the course of which the most important doctrines of masonic science and philosophy are discussed with profound research, but in a pleasing and familiar style. Among the topics elucidated in the course of the lectures are the Circle and Parallel Lines the Three Great Lights, the Theological Ladder, the Cloudy Canopy, and the Blazing Star. From the perusal of this book, which ought to be one of the most popular of Oliver's productions, no man can arise without being a wiser and a better man.

4. The Spirit of Masonry.—By Wm. Hutchinson, with notes by Rev. George Oliver, D. D.

This is one of the earliest and one of the best of the English works on the philosophy of Masonry. The author, who lived till 1814 to see the vast advancement of the order in its speculative character, since the year 1775, when the first edition of his work was published, was distinguished for "his extensive literary acquirements, his cultivated mind, and suavity of manners." No masonic scholar can deem his cycle of studies complete without a careful perusal of Hutchinson. It is, indeed, one of the first works that he should read. The notes of Oliver, of course, give additional value to the volume.

Volume III.

5. Illustrations of Masonry.—By Wm. Preston, with notes by Dr. Oliver.

Preston's work has, ever since its first appearance (1770), been a vade mecum with the Fraternity. It contains, undoubtedly, the best digested history of Masonry, from the origin of the order in England to the year 1820, that has ever been written, and supplies many lacunæ in the rather indigested books of Constitution which have, from time to time, been published. In an eventful portion of this history Preston himself took an active part, and his account of the events which there occurred, comprising the contests between the Lodge of Antiquity and the Grand Lodge of England, have all the interest and fidelity that arise from the account of an eye-witness and actor. The History has been continued to 1840 by the able and correct pen of Dr. Oliver. No masonic library can be perfect, and no course of masonic study can be complete, without the assistance of this indispensable work.

Volume IV.

6. The Antiquity of Freemasonry.—By Rev. George Oliver, D. D.

The object which the venerable author sought to attain in the composition of this work, was to place Masonry on tenable ground as a science, and to lend his aid in wiping off the opprobrium too frequently attached to its practice by those who join, inconsiderately in the cry against the institution, without reflecting on its claims to respect, if not veneration. The task he has nobly, and we believe, successfully, accomplished; and had he written no other line, this delightful book would have secured to Oliver an enviable reputation as one of the benefactors and teachers of the order. It is, indeed, a complete system of religious philosophy of Masonry.

7. Discourses.—By Thaddeus Mason Harris, Past Grand Chaplain of the Grand Lodge of Massachusetts.

These discourses, which were delivered from the pulpit at various times during the close of the last century, constitute an admirable compend of masonic duties and obligations, which cannot be read without improvement and pleasure. The "Dissertation on the Tessera Hospitalis of the Ancient Romans," which is added by way of appendix, and is from the same erudite author, will be acceptable as it is useful and interesting to all Mark Masters. Harris has the honor of being the first philosophical writer on Masonry in America.

Volume V.

8. The History of Freemasonry.—By Rev. George Oliver, D. D.

This work is essentially necessary to complete up to the date of its publication the historical series commenced by Preston, and which, in the Oliver's edition of that author was carried only to the year 1828. The acknowledged skill and research of Oliver are a guarantee of the fidelity with which the task has been accomplished.

9. A Mirror for the Johannite Masons.—By Rev. George Oliver, D. D.

The whole history of the connection of the institution of Freemasonry with the two St. Johns is here treated with equal research and interest. A rich mine of traditionary and historical information is laid open to the readers of this brief but delightful brochure.

10. The Star in the East.—By Rev. George Oliver, D. D.

This was one of the earliest of Oliver's works. It is an attempt, and a successful one, to exhibit the connection which exists between Freemasonry and Religion. It is in itself an unanswerable argument against all the denunciations of anti-masonic writers who have vainly sought to cast the opprobrium of an anti-religious character upon our institution. Although principally didactic in its composition, it abounds in much of that antiquarian tone with which Oliver is wont to enrich his masonic writings.

Volume VI.

11. A Candid Disquisition.—By Wellins Calcott, P. M.

Calcott's works have always occupied a high position in the libraries of the masonic students. The first edition was printed at London, in 1799, and it was among the earliest books in England to invite the attention of the Craft to the philosophical character of the institution. Calcott was a man of much literary attainment, and the mode in which he has here illustrated the scientific principles of Masonry does not derogate from the reputation he had acquired in his own time as a ripe scholar and accomplished writer. As a matter of antiquarian research, the reader of the "Disquisition," in addition to the views presented on the origin, nature, and design of the institution, will be gratified by a perusal of the many charges and addresses contained in the appendix, in which he will find the originals of many of the most admired portions of the present system of monitorial instruction.

12. The Masonic Manual.—By Rev. Jonathan Ashe, D. D., M. M.; with annotations and remarks, by Rev. George Oliver, D. D.

Although there is but little originality in this work, which was first published in 1813, yet, as a summary or compilation of the views and opinions of precedent writers, such as Preston, Smith, Calcott, and more especially, Hutchinson, from whom he has already borrowed, it will be found highly valuable as an arrangement, in a regularly graduated series of instructions on the principles and duties of the institution. It consists of thirty chapters, under the title of arguments, any one of which would constitute a most valuable lecture, to be read by the Master at the communication of the Lodge. After hearing it, each brother would depart a wiser and a better Mason—more thoroughly acquainted with the character of the Society of which he is a member, and better prepared to discharge the duties it has imposed upon him.

Volume VII.

13. The Revelations of a Square; exhibiting a graphic display of the sayings and doings of eminent Free and Accepted Masons, from the revival in 1717, by Dr. Desaguliers, to the re-union in 1813, by their R. H., the Dukes of Kent and Sussex.—By Rev. George Oliver, D. D.

This is the latest production of the pen of the patriarch of Masonry, but the voice of the Fraternity has already bestowed upon it the meed of universal praise. It may, indeed, be called, emphatically, a romance of Masonry. Although a work of fiction, that is, a work written by the appliances of fictitious machinery, it embodies a vast amount of historical research, which has made known to the Craft a quantity of facts connected with the proceedings of Masonry in England subsequent to its revival, which have heretofore been, and must, without the assistance of Dr. Oliver, have always been, inaccessible to the world. There is no work that has ever issued from the masonic press that will be read with more pleasure, and few with more instruction, than the "Revelations."

14. An Introduction to Freemasonry; being a general outline of that ancient and venerable institution, pointing out the dignity of its design, and the means for attaining it, its arcana excepted.—By a Brother.

This is an anonymous production, first published, probably, about the end of the last century, in England, but no research has enabled us to penetrate the veil with which the author's modesty has enshrouded him; and his name still remaining unknown, his work is to be judged—as indeed, all works should be—by the standard of its own merits, and so judged, the verdict is favorable; for, in a pleasing style, and with admirable powers of reasoning, it presents an excellent exposition of the true character and design of Freemasonry. Our sympathies, too, may be excited, and our appreciation of its value be augmented, when we learn that this little Manual was composed under the pressure of pecuniary embarrassments, and the disadvantages of old age and infirm health. Its perusal will amply repay the student for the time occupied, and will be eminently suggestive to every thinking mind.

Volume VIII.

15. The History of Initiation.—By Rev. George Oliver, D. D.

To the Mason who supposes that all that is necessary to be known of the institution is to be found in monitors and hieroglyphic charts, this work will, of course, appear out of place in a masonic library. But as—thanks to the diffusion of masonic learning—the number of such narrow-minded brethren is rapidly diminishing, the appropriateness of the selection of the editor of the library will now scarcely be doubted. In truth, Oliver's Lectures on Initiation should be carefully studied—not simply read—by every one, as a preliminary labor to the investigation of the nature and the end of the masonic institution itself. The immense information on the subject of the Pagan Rites, contained in the massive and expressive works of Faber, Bryant, Selden, etc., are here condensed, and the connection of the whole subject clearly exhibited in its relation to the ritual of Masonry. The work is, in fact, absolutely indispensable in a course of masonic study. Without its careful perusal no Mason can pretend to have anything more than a superficial knowledge of the nature of this institution.

16. The History and Illustration of Freemasonry.—Compiled from an ancient publication. Same as No.

This small volume of some eighty pages, forms a very appropriate appendix to the preceding work, which it accompanies. It is a learned history of the institution, and of its connection with the mysteries of antiquity. It is, in fact, perhaps the best philosophical history of Freemasonry, of its size, that has ever been written. After reading the larger work of Oliver on Initiation, the student will find in this brief essay an excellent review and recapitulation of what he has just gone over, with the addition of many new and important facts.

Volume IX.

17. Constitutions of the Ancient Fraternity of Free and Accepted Masons (1853).—By Wm. White as Grand Secretary.

18. The Constitution of Freemasonry (1813); or, *Ahiman Reson: to which are added certain Lectures, Charges, and a Masonic Ritual.—Published by the Grand Lodge of Ireland.
19. The Constitutions of the Grand Lodge of Scotland (1848).

The titles of these works, which, together, comprise the ninth volume of the library, sufficiently explain themselves. They are published from the latest official editions, and as the Constitutions of the three oldest Grand Lodges in the world, are indispensable to the student of masonic jurisprudence. They contain, beside, much ritual and historical matter of great interest and importance.

Volume X.

20. The Theocratic Philosophy of Freemasonry; in twelve Lectures, on its Speculative, Operative, and Spurious branches.—By Rev. George Oliver, D. D.

This is one of the most erudite of Oliver's works. In it the author has especially devoted himself to the consideration of the religious sentiment that is infused into Masonry. Commencing with a view of the institution under every form in which it has been presented, from the earliest periods of history, he proceeds to trace its progress in the ancient world until it assumed its present organization, and concludes with a rational examination of its speculative ceremonies and observances. From the former part of the work every scholar must derive gratification, while the latter will furnish much useful information to the practical Mason.

21. Signs and Symbols.—By Rev. George Oliver, D. D.

The most important symbols of the order are here illustrated and explained in a course of admirable lectures—the ten most significant, namely: the All-Seeing Eye, the Serpent, the Cherubim, the Deluge, the Mysterious Darkness of the Third Degree, the Three Pillars, the Ladder, the Point within a Circle, and the Apron—constitute the subject, each of a particular lecture; while all the other symbols and emblems of Masonry are incidentally explained. The work is, indeed, a treatise on the alphabet of Masonry.

Volume XI.

22. The Historical Landmarks.—By Rev. George Oliver, D. D.
Vol. I.

Volume XII.

- 22 (a). The same work continued. Vol. II.

This is, without doubt, the opus magnum of Dr. Oliver. Upon it he has expended all his various and curious learning; and the notes alone constitute, with the ample indexes of the subjects which the volume contains, a most valuable Encyclopedia of Freemasonry. There is, indeed, scarcely any topic connected with the history, philosophy, science, or even ritual of Freemasonry, which may not be found discussed in the erudite pages of the "Landmark." But to eulogize this work, which has so thoroughly passed the ordeal of criticism, is "to paint the lily, or to gild refined gold."

Volume XIII.

23. Stray Leaves.—By a Suffolk Rector.

This is one of those books which the student may take up in his hours of recreation with a certainty that even his moments of idleness will not be altogether without advantage to himself. It consists of well written sketches, in which the subjects all have some relation to Masonry, and are intended to develop some important masonic principles. This pleasing production will form an entertaining relief to the more elaborate works in the library series which precede and follow it.

24. Apology for the Order of Freemasons.—By M. N., a member of the Order. Translated for the Universal Masonic Library from the original French. By Henry W. Thorpe, A. M.

This work was originally published at the Hague and Dresden, in 1745, and is so recorded as No. 32 in Thory's Bibliographical Catalogue. The translation appears to have been made from an edition of 1765, and therefore, probably an improved one. The task of the translator has been executed with great skill and fidelity. The Essay itself is an able, though dispassionate, answer to the charges, which, even at that early period, had been preferred against the order.

25. Schism Amongst the Masons in England.—By Rev. George Oliver, D. D.

This is almost the only history that we have—certainly the only reliable one—of the origin of the Royal Arch Degree as practiced in the York Rite. Coming from the pen of the learned Oliver, it is entitled to increased consideration, and is, consequently, a work indispensable in a masonic library.

26. Insignia of the Royal Arch.—By Rev. George Oliver, D. D.

This is a continuation of the subject treated in the preceding pamphlet, and as a sort of appendix to it, is essentially necessary to a thorough understanding of Dr. Oliver's arguments.

27. The Secret Discipline.—By Theodore Temple.

Theodore Temple is but a nom de plume. The work was published in 1833, by Samuel L. Knapp, the author of an excellent little volume, entitled "The Genius of Masonry." He ascribes it to the pen of one "who is a scholar and a Christian, and who has done much for religion and letters," but whose great age rendering him averse to controversy, had prevented him from affixing his real name to the work. It certainly bears the internal evidence of great learning. Knapp gives this brief synopsis of the book: "in it the secret discipline of the church is proved from the same authority by which the gospels are established, and for aught we see, as clearly; and this secret discipline was, and is, Masonry."

Volume XIV.

28. Lights and Shadows of Freemasonry.—By Rob. Morris, Knight Templar.

Volume XV.

29. Constitution of the Freemasons (1723).—Anderson.

This is a republication of the celebrated edition of 1723, of Anderson's Constitutions. Previous to its insertion in the library series, there were of the original work not more than half a dozen copies in the United States. It was what booksellers call, "out of print," and a copy brought the most extravagant price. It is now rendered accessible to every Mason. Containing, as it does, the fundamental law of Masonry, it is deemed of high authority as a book of reference in all questions of masonic jurisprudence, and its value cannot, therefore, be too highly esteemed. Two analytical indexes, prepared by Brother Mackey, especially for the library edition, are intended to facilitate its use as a book of reference.

30. History of Freemasonry.—By A. Lawrie.

This work was written and published in 1804, by Alexander Lawrie, a bookseller of Edinburgh, and a man of great literary attainments. It was translated into German in 1810, by Dr. Krause, and has received the marked approbation of continental critics. The "Jahrbuchen der Literatur," published at Heidelberg, in 1810, gave a long and favorable review of it, prefacing its article with the remarks, that it is "a book, which, on account of its historical contents, well merits the attention both of those who are initiated and those who are not." Similarly favorable views of it have been always entertained by English and American Masons, all of whom justly regard it as one of the best histories of the origin of Masonry that is extant.

Volume XVI.

31. Sermons.—By Rev. Jethro Inwood.

32. Three Sermons.—By Rev. Wm. John Percey, M. A.

A volume of masonic sermons was necessary to give completeness to a masonic library, and the editor could not have selected any more appropriate than those of Inwood, which, although having been more than sixty years before the Fraternity, have not yet been surpassed for fervor of piety, for beauty of language, or for the truly masonic spirit which is conspicuous in every discourse. The sermons of Mr. Percey, forming a part of our cotemporary literature, constitute an admirable accompaniment to those older ones, both by their style and execution. The Christian and the Mason will be equally edified with these specimens of pulpit eloquence.

Volume XVII.

33. Principles of Masonic Law.—By Albert G. Mackey, M. D.

As we are not expected to say anything of this book ourselves, we are willing to leave the review of it to Judge Lewis, the distinguished Grand Master of New York, who has thus flatteringly expressed his opinion in a letter to the publishers: "It is one of the most valuable books that has been given to the Fraternity for many years, and supplies a fault long felt and deplored by intelligent Masters of Lodges, and will relieve Grand Officers from a vast amount of labor in replying to questions of masonic law and practice. The orderly arrangement of the work, the clear, lucid, elementary style in which it is written, and the sound and satisfactory reasons given for the conclusions at which he arrives upon mooted points, will make it a standard work."

Volume XVIII.

34. History of Masonic Persecutions.—By Rev. George Oliver, D. D.

This work, compiled by Dr. Oliver, with great care, may be supposed to hold, as it were, to a masonic library the same relation that the "Book of Martyrs" does to a theological. It presents us with the dark scenes in the history of our institution, and is of indispensable utility in the historical study of Masonry. The editor's notes are not the least valuable part of the work.

35. Masonic Institutions.—By various authors. Notes by Rev. George Oliver, D. D.

This is a collection of valuable gems, which, unless they had been thus preserved by the indefatigable editor, must have been inaccessible to the generality of the Fraternity. Among them we find interesting and instructive lectures from men whose names have long been consecrated for their services in the memories of the Craft—such as Anderson, Martin Clare, Dunckerly, and others. These writings are all venerable remains, for the restoration of which the masonic public owes a debt of gratitude to Dr. Oliver.

Volume XIX.

36. History of the Knights Hospitalers of St. John, of Jerusalem; styled afterwards the Knights of Rhodes, and at present the Knights of Malta. Translated from the French of Mons. L'Abbe de Vertot. Vol. I.

Volume XX.

- 36 (a). The same work continued. Vol. II.

Volume XXI.

- 36 (b). The same work continued. Vol. III.

Volume XXII.

- 36 (c). The same work continued. Vol. IV.

The history of the Knights of Malta is so intimately connected with that of the Knights Templar, that to the Mason who has received this exalted degree, the work of Vertot cannot fail to be highly interesting. Even to the Master Mason, a record of the adventures of those gallant Knights, in times where many are disposed (we do not say correctly) to place the origin of our Order, must be acceptable, and its reading not altogether destitute of advantage.

37. Statutes; for the government of the Royal, Exalted, Religious, and Military Order of Masonic Knights Templars in England and Wales, as resolved and agreed on at the Grand Conclave, held on the 13th day of May, 1853.

To the Knight Templar who desires to know something of the condition of his Order elsewhere, as well as at home, this little brochure will be received with pleasure. The English edition can be obtained only with the greatest difficulty, since, as an official document, it is not on sale.

Volume XXIII.

38. Use and Abuse of Freemasonry.—By Capt. George Smith.

The first edition of this work was published in 1783. At the time, it was the only good record of the state of Masonry on the continent of Europe, and even now, notwithstanding the increased number of Masonic writers, we must still go to Smith if we desire to know anything of the real condition of the institution at the end of the last century in Germany, Russia, Spain, Sweden, and other continental states. With Preston for England, Lawrie for Scotland, and Smith for the rest of Europe, the reader is furnished so far as they go, with all the means necessary for becoming an adept in masonic history; and, without Smith, this course of study would not be complete.

39. Life in the Triangle.—By Rob. Morris, Knight Templar.

40. Historical Sketch of the Order of Knights Templar.—

An address delivered before South Carolina Encampment, No. 1, at Charleston, S. C., March 23, 1855. By T. S. Gourdin.

This is a brief but very excellent and correct condensation of the history of the Order, so far as the author's materials could enable him to execute the task. The full and complete history of Templarism is yet to be written; our own country cannot furnish the necessary documents. But, until the narrative is composed by some one who has access to the libraries of Europe, this brochure will be found highly useful to all who desire to obtain any knowledge of the Order of the Temple. The author's constant reference to authorities for the facts that he details, is a custom which it would be well that masonic writers should hereafter adopt more generally than they have hitherto.

Volume XXIV.

41. Manual of Masonic Music.—Compiled and arranged by James B. Taylor, Knight Templar. 1. Containing music for masonic ceremonies, and the masonic social circle; 2. Containing masonic odes, songs, anthems, etc.

Volume XXV.

42. Freemasons' Monthly Magazine.—1855, January to June.

Volume XXVI.

- 42 (a). The same work continued. 1855, July to December.

Volume XXVII.

43. The Mystic Tie, Etc.—By A. G. Mackey, M. D.

44. Brown's Narrative of the Anti-Masonic Excitement.

45. Percy Morton's Oration at the re-interment of General Joseph Warren.

Volume XXVIII.

46. Masonry and Anti-Masonry.—By Alfred Creigh.

47. Philosophy of Masonry.—By Rev. Augustus C. L. Arnold.

48. Speculative Masonry.—By Rev. Salem Town, LL. D.
 49. By-Laws of the Lodge of An iquity.—London.
 50. Ancient Poem on the Constitutions of Masonry.—Halliwell.
 51. Egyptian Symbols.—Portal.
 52. A Catalogue of the Original Patrons of the Universal Masonic Library. Arranged in the order of States.
